24 HOURS IN

Berlin

OUR PERFECT 24 HOURS IN BERLIN

Wake up early on a beautiful (summer) day, grab the kids and drive - still hungry - to the Winterfeldt Markt, Berlin's best farmers' market, where you can buy anything your heart desires: organic fruits and vegetables from local farms, wild herbs and edible flowers, freshly baked bread, homemade jams or beautiful bouquets of wild flowers. Look for the longest queue in the middle of the market - the tiramisu sold there by a friendly Italian woman is worth every minute of waiting. Enjoy this small taste of happiness together with a nice strong espresso or a hot chocolate for the little ones!

Grab a delicious falafel at Habibi and a few other items for a picnic, then head out of the city. Rent bikes at Wannsee station and cycle to the Liebermann Villa (a small exhibition with nice gardens), then follow the small path along the Wannsee to the Pfaueninsel-Anleger, where you'll take the ferry onto a little island. Alternatively, take a bus tour through a beautiful forest to the Pfaueninsel. The Pfaueninsel is the perfect spot for a family picnic with castle ruins, beautiful peacocks, and great views of the lake.

If you still have some time for a side trip, visit one of the most idyllic cafés in Berlin - The „Mutter Fourage“. Situated in a little (and often sunny) courtyard, this is a spot where you can enjoy superb organic salads or excellent cakes. Kids can roam around and right next to the café is a little farm shop with seasonal fruits and vegetables which are lovingly displayed. It really feels like a trip down memory lane.

At night, meet some friends at Café Schlacht, a cozy restaurant near Schlachtensee where they have the best wiener schnitzel outside of Vienna, and other Austrian delicacies (the Kaiserschmarrn is absolutely mouth watering). Ask for the table at the window - on a nice summer night, your kids can sleep in the buggy just on the other side of the window pane while you enjoy your dinner. After a beautiful day outdoors, the S1 train takes you directly back into the heart of the city.

*Enjoy exploring,
Janne & Julian*
